Bitcoin Treasury Corporation ("BTCT") has entered into an administrative services agreement with Evolve Funds Group Inc. ("Evolve"), a Canadian asset manager and leader in digital asset investment products. Evolve provides operational support to BTCT on a delegated basis, while BTCT retains full responsibility and control over strategic direction, regulatory compliance, business operations, and shareholder relations. Certain directors and officers of BTCT also serve in managerial or governance roles at Evolve, creating potential conflicts of interest where business activities may overlap or compete. These individuals are subject to fiduciary duties, applicable securities laws, and corporate governance policies that require fair dealing, transparency, and the avoidance of improper influence, including recusal from voting where conflicts exist. From Evolve's standpoint, this relationship is subject to applicable investment fund manager obligations under Canadian securities regulation, including conflict of interest rules under NI 31-103 and NI 81-107 where relevant, and is overseen by internal controls such as Evolve's Independent Review Committee, conflict management framework, and dedicated compliance function to ensure all decisions are made in the best interests of clients and in compliance with regulatory expectations.
